This is a true story about a young girl growing up in France during the Napoleonic wars. This story is about Aurore Dupin, in her last years at her grandmother's château of Nohant near the town of Bourges. As a teenager she was sent to the Couvent des Anglaises (Convent of the English) to further her education. Here she learns English and how to drink tea, which was almost unheard of in France at the time. We also read about how Aurore makes friends with other like-minded girls and the adventures and escapades they get up to exploring the 100 year-old convent founded by English nuns in Paris in the mid-1600's. Will they be able to reveal the Legend of the Concealed Prisoner? and

This is a true story about a young girl growing up in France during the Napoleonic era. This story is about Aurore Dupin, who later became better known as George Sand, and her friends, the birds and beasts, dwellers like herself in the bare and desolate plains that surrounded her grandmother's ch teau of Nohant near the town of Bourges. In this story we read about Aurore's pet warblers (look out for the moral in this story!), her pet hawk, rabbit, fawn and donkey, which was more like a dog than donkey and which brought much mirth and amusement to the

of How Aurore Dupin Learnt To Ride. On leaving the convent (see Baba Indaba Issue 210) Aurore returned home to Nohant, Indre Department, Central France to live with her Grandmother, for the first time seeing the world through the eyes of woman. Now being addressed as 'Mademoiselle', she finds it difficult to return to the activities of her childhood. Madame de Pontcarré and her old friend, Pauline, arrive for a visit. Later Hippolyte, now a dashing young hussar, returns to spend his leave at Nohant and that's when things really began to change. More than a competent horseman, he decides to teach Aurore to ride. She soon finds commands shouted at her, like 'Sit up straight' and 'Stop slouching'. Aurore heard and obeyed with all her might. Five or six times she was jerked upwards out of the saddle, but she always returned to it again. When Hippolyte returned to his regiment, Aurore could be found riding with Collette on the commons visiting relatives and sick friends.

Returning from one of these rides Collette and Aurore have to cross a river at a ford, and that's when disaster struck..... You are invited to download and read another real-life story about Aurore and her riding escapades as she learns how to ride. 33% of the profit from the sale of this book will be donated to charities. MI5 are interested in Hélène Lafosse, a Frenchwoman keeping unusual company in her small family château in the depths of the Touraine. Hélène has begun an affair with a senior Abwehr intelligence officer, who, in return, has turned a blind eye to the succession of Jews, refugees, resistance fighters and downed Allied airmen to whom she offers shelter. MI5 believe they can exploit this relationship and plant a false lead about the anticipated allied invasion of northern France. It falls to Billy, playing a downed airman, to find Hélène, to win her
